Teen pleads not guilty to high school threats

Allegedly sent texts threatening to 'choke the life out' of student, 'have another Columbine'

From staff reports

The Lawrenceburg teen accused of sending text messages threatening to "choke the life out" of a female student and to "have another Columbine" at the Anderson County High School recently pleaded not guilty to numerous charges related to the Jan. 28 incident.

James R. Tindal, 19, of 1430 Van Buren Road, Lawrenceburg, appeared in Anderson County District Court Jan. 31 and pleaded not guilty to 25 counts of third-degree terroristic threatening, one count of second-degree terroristic threatening and 41 counts of harassing communications.

The court records do not reflect if bond was set for Tindal at the time he entered his plea.

According to a warrant for his arrest, Tindal allegedly sent text messages to Police: Women threatened rape claim if man didn't pay

Mercer County pair charged with extortion

From staff reports

Two Mercer County women are charged with extortion for allegedly saying they would claim a local man raped them if he didn't give them cash.

Lynnette Marie Ballou, 26, and Shene Warfield, 31, both of 515 Marion Drive, Harrodsburg, were taken into custody last week by the Lawrenceburg Police Department.

According to court records, a complaint was filed by Wayne Aldridge, who told police the women tried to extort cash from him. He said the first incident happened Jan. 18, 2012, when the women told him they would claim he raped them if he didn't give them $100.

He said the second incident happened the following day when the women again threatened to claim rape if he didn't give them $300.

The women were arraigned Jan. 31, 2012 in Anderson District Court in front of Judge Donna Dutton.

Both pleaded not guilty.

They were each charged with two counts of theft by extortion and one count of harassing communications resulting from what police said stem from "harassing and annoying" text messages sent by them to Aldridge on Jan. 19, 2012.

Officer Josh Satterly of the Lawrenceburg Police Department made the arrests.

Out of classroom and into the fire

Junior firefighters learn it takes more than water to put out blazes

By Meaghan Downs
News staff

Junior firefighters don't take pop quizzes or fill-in-the-bubble tests.

The real test, according to junior firefighter Cassie Rowe, is at the scene of a structure fire or car crash.

Firefighters need to be calm. Firefighters should be able to talk to people.

Developing both skills can be hard to take out of theory in trainings and put into practice, she said.

New state law allows firearms in govt. buildings

By Ben Carlson

It's always been legal to walk around Lawrenceburg openly carrying a firearm.

A state law that went into effect several weeks ago now makes it legal to walk into nearly every public building carrying a firearm, too.

The law, which proclaims only the state can regulate firearms, breezed through the general assembly and was signed into law by the governor last

"If you ever roll up on a fire scene, you better know what you're doing," Cassie, a senior at Anderson County High School, said.

With the Junior Firefighter Program, which had been offered through the Kentucky Fire Commission since 2011, students ages 14-17 have that opportunity to learn from trained firefighters as they rack up hours to use toward official certification.

Chief Hume said he learned about the Junior Firefighter Program this summer after some Internet browsing. Students could always attend trainings on an unofficial basis, he said but their training hours couldn't be entered into the system until they turned 18.

"Now, with the new system we can put them in [the Kentucky Fire Commission database] as soon as they join," City Fire Chief Robert Hume said.

The program allows junior firefighters to apply anywhere for a full-time position after they have 150 hours completed. Chief Hume estimated that each junior firefighter, attending 2-hour classes usually held twice a month, currently has completed about 35-40 hours each.

"This is something I think we should have had for a long time," Chief Hume said. "I think it's going to be good for our department."

Capt. Darren Rowe, a senior training instructor and Cassie's father, agreed.

"It's a good thing," Capt. Rowe said of the program. "The younger they are when they begin, the easier it is to train them."

And Cassie has known for a while — essentially from the time her father took her on her first "fire run" while Cassie was preschool age — that she wanted to help others as a volunteer firefighter.

"I always wanted to help people," Cassie, 17, said. "Just being a firefighter ... I'd be able to possibly save people or at least save their house. I just want to help people as best I can."

Cassie isn't alone.

For fellow junior firefighter and sophomore Dalton Hawkins, 16, he's always admired a firefighter's act of bravery in going into a fire, adding that 9/11 contributed to his decision to become a firefighter one day.

Morgan Penn said he dressed up as a firefighter for Halloween for years. He said he'd like to attend Eastern Kentucky University and major in fire science, make firefighting a career.

His father had opportunity to become a firefighter when he was in his 20s, Morgan said, and his dad regretted not doing it ever since.

"I like helping people and I like the adrenaline rush," Morgan, a home school student, said.

The words "helping people" was the phrase used by most of the junior firefighters, including Nick Hume, the 17-year-old grandson of Fire Chief Robert Hume.

"I just like helping people," Nick, who said he plans on being certified when he turns 18, said.

"Firefighting I think is the best way to give back to the community, really."

Because of liability issues, junior firefighters need to be watched carefully and are restricted in what they can and cannot do, Chief Hume said.

The student firefighters act more as "gophers," assisting other firefighters by retrieving needed equipment or laying hose at the scene.

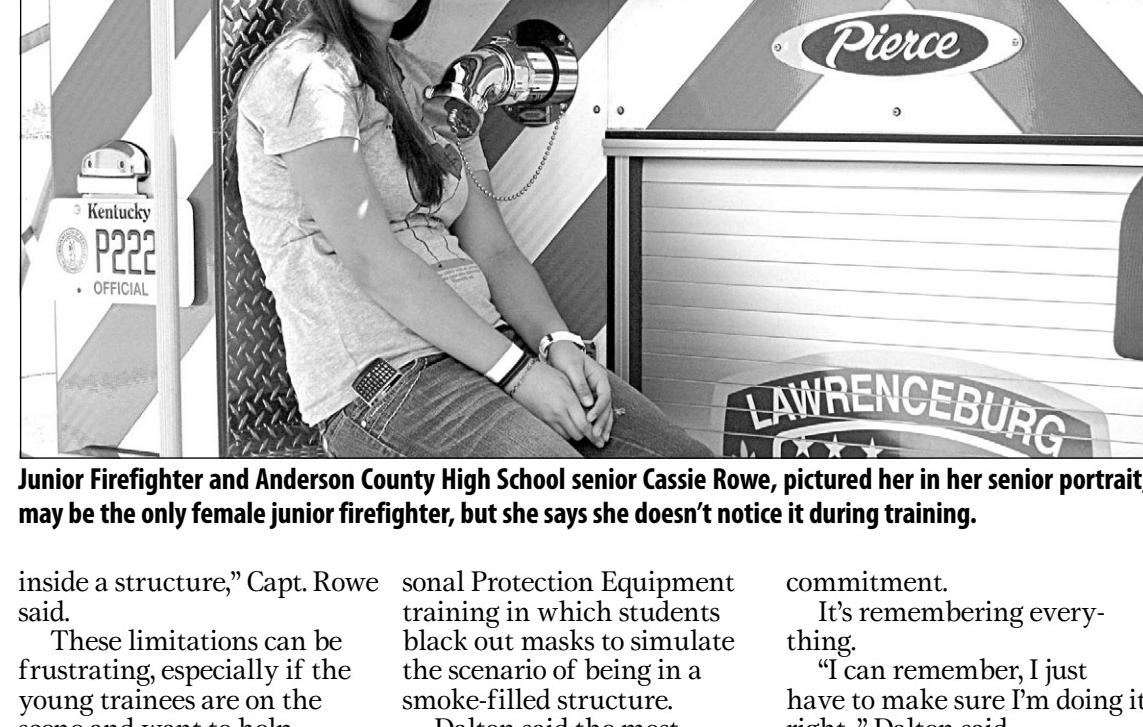

The only fire a junior firefighter can actually respond to, Capt. Rowe said, is a fire burning outside in a maximum 30-inch by 30-inch area.

"They can do just about any operation on the outside of a house, they just can't go inside a structure," Capt. Rowe said.

These limitations can be frustrating, especially if the young trainees are on the scene and want to help.

"The most difficult part is showing up at fire scenes, being a gopher," Cassie said. "You see the fire and you want to help, but you can't."

Although no junior firefighters have yet responded to the scene of a fire in 2013, they've learned how to address accident scenes, how to pitch ladders and during the junior firefighters' Jan. 24 meeting, learned about Hazmat training.

Eventually, Capt. Rowe said, the junior firefighters will also participate in a Personal Protection Equipment training in which students black out masks to simulate the scenario of being in a smoke-filled structure.

Dalton said the most impressive thing he's done in firefighter training was observe the power of a 150-pound high-pressure fire hose.

"It about took you up off your feet," Dalton said.

For Nick, watching the hydraulic extraction rescue tool at work was more impressive.

"Just the power of the cutters and how easy it was to cut through metal, roofs, about anything," Nick said.

The most difficult part about training, the junior firefighters said, is not the time commitment.

It's remembering everything.

"I can remember, I just have to make sure I'm doing it right," Dalton said.

If you want to be a junior firefighter, Dalton continued, you have to work hard and pay attention.

You've got to be prepared for anything, Morgan said.

Know what you're getting yourself into, Cassie said, because you never know what kind of scene you'll roll up to.

"It's a lot more complex than you think," Nick said. "It's more than just spraying water, putting out a fire."

a 17-year-old female student last Sunday night and stated he was going to "choke the life out of her and watch last breath leave her body through his hands."

Tindal's messages also said

"he will throw one of his pipe bombs through her window and shoot her through her window," according to the search warrant narrative, and that "he would go to the school and have another [expletive] Columbine."

Lawrenceburg city police received a complaint about the threatening text messages and arrested Tindal around 3 a.m. on Jan. 28 at his residence, according to police reports.

The

Anderson County School district responded to the threats by issuing a One Call notification to Emma B. Ward Elementary and Anderson County High School parents, informing them of the incident and increased security on both campuses, according to Superintendent Sheila Mitchell.

Because of a possible connection to Emma B. Ward, both building were searched by a Kentucky State Police K-9 unit and secured before classes began Monday morning.

The threats came on the end of the district's recent attempts to perform safety audits and practice lockdowns to improve schools' security procedures and policies.

Tindal is due to appear again in district court on Feb. 7 at 9 a.m.

spring. It effectively ends the ability of city and county governments to restrict people from openly carrying firearms into their offices.

The law also ends any restrictions put in place at public libraries, health departments, fire halls and other public locations except for judicial centers, schools and jails.

The change wasn't received well in some Kentucky communities but went largely unnoticed in Lawrenceburg.

City Clerk Robbie

Hume said the new law doesn't change a thing at city hall, where there were no restrictions in place even before it went into effect.

"Some cities had ordinances that prohibited open carry and concealed carry of firearms in city hall, but we've haven't had anything like that here," Hume said.

"There is no prohibition anywhere in city government," Hume added, including the fire and police stations.

Hume said he could recall only one time when a person entered city hall carrying a firearm, which was holstered on the person's hip.

County Attorney Bobbi Jo Lewis said her office also never had a sign prohibiting firearms, as did Sheriff Troy Young, who said there was a sign years ago on the old sheriff's office that dealt with firearms.

Young confirmed that carrying firearms or "weapons" of any kind remains illegal in schools, including the board of education facility and Bluegrass Community and Technical College.

Young said the county courthouse is also off limits for firearms, including the offices of the county clerk and circuit court clerk.

Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway's office has signs on its front and back doors forbidding concealed weapons. Asked Monday if those signs need to come down, Conway said he is looking into that because the back of his office doubles as a Department of Motor Vehicles testing location as well as a location for residents to meet with a representative of Congressman Andy Barr's office once a month.

"If they need to come down, I'll take them down," Conway said.

Library director Pam Mullins said her facility operates as a special taxing district and never has had the legal authority to restrict firearms.

"I would not think we are a place that would require someone to carry a firearm but we're obviously going to follow the law," Mullins said, adding that her patrons include a number of children and elderly people who may feel uneasy if they see someone carrying a firearm into the building.

"I might make some people uneasy, but maybe some will feel safer," she said.

Hume, the city clerk, said it's understandable that others in city hall may be uncomfortable seeing someone carry a firearm, and that the person very well could be asked why they are doing so.

"We would question it but not prohibit it," he said, adding that although a separate statute allows cities to restrict concealed firearms, he's aware of no effort locally to consider doing so.

Tim Wright, director of the health department, could not be reached Monday for comment.

Sculptor, family create horse out of snow

By Ben Carlson
News staff

Most folks look at their snow-covered yards and grimace, waiting for it to melt.

Donna Devers looks at it as an opportunity to do something she loves: sculpt.

Devers, her daughter Kayla Higgins and grandsons Camdon and Calen Higgins, took advantage of last weekend's snowfall, using the white stuff to sculpt a remarkably lifelike horse Sunday afternoon behind her home on Dejeddah Drive in Lawrenceburg.

"I'm fascinated with snow sculptures," Devers said. "I love to look at examples on the Internet ... that's how I came up with this idea."

Sunday's effort wasn't Devers' first and, depending on future snowstorms, certainly won't be her last.

Not long after the 9/11 terrorist attacks, Devers said she took advantage of a snowstorm here to create a replica of the Statue of Liberty on Main Street.

"It stood about 10 feet tall, I painted it the color of the actual statue and illuminated it with a light," she said.

Devers said she and her family worked on what she calls her snow horse for about two and a half hours Sunday.

"We just used our hands," she said. "I took my gloves off and used the warmth of my hands to shape around its ears and eyes, and a spray bottle of water just to kind of hold it together," she said.

"That's about it."

Devers said her grandchildren were excited to help, and have already made requests for the next time it snows.

"They want me to make a Transformer or monster trucks," she said. "Personally, I'd like to do a dolphin coming out of a wave."

Don't abuse a right because you can

Mayor, judge-executive's actions belie thaw in county v. city cold war

Column as I see 'em ... The old adage that just because you can do something doesn't mean you should crossed my mind several times this week as I wrote an article about a firearms law that went into effect in January.

Passed easily by the state legislature and signed into law by the governor, the law says that only the state can regulate firearms and largely stripped municipalities from restricting people from carrying guns into publically owned buildings.

The short version is that Kentuckians are welcome to carry firearms into places such as a library, health department, city hall or judge-executive's office, and bans them only from judicial centers, jails and schools.

It's interesting that while places like New York and Chicago are putting the screws to legal gun owners, here in Kentucky we're busy finding more locations where they can be openly carried. I can't help but wonder if that's why our murder rates are so much lower.

Anyway, while researching public reaction in other communities, I found quotes from Liberty Mayor Steve Sweeney, who questioned the logic of the new law.

"I don't understand the need," Sweeney is quoted as saying in the Jan. 30 edition of The Casey County News. "What reason do they need to carry a weapon in city hall? It's a little troubling."

On the surface that's true. The notion that someone can visit city hall or other public buildings with an AR-15 strapped over his or her shoulder seems a bit odd, particularly during a time when such firearms are under assault (pun most definitely intended).

Here, the reaction to the new law was largely one giant yawn from local officials. City Clerk Robbie Hume said there have never been firearms restrictions — concealed or otherwise — at city hall.

County Attorney Bobbi Jo Lewis, whose office deals with more than its share of angry people from time to time, said she has never considered firearms restrictions, as did Sheriff Troy Young, and neither are going to lose any sleep over the notion that someone might show up with a gun.

Library director Pam Mullins offered what I thought was an interesting take when asked if she thought a person bringing a gun into the facility would alarm her patrons.

She said that's possible, but it could also make some of them feel safer.

Judge-Executive John Wayne Conway, whose front and back doors have signs forbidding concealed weapons, said he's working to find out if those signs can be removed because the fiscal court chambers doubles as a DMV location.

"If those signs have to come down, I'll take them down," was basically all he had to say.

While there's little doubt that many folks would be remarkably uncomfortable seeing someone openly carry a firearms into a city council or fiscal court meeting, or while standing in line to pay a water bill, the bottom line is that doing so is legal and, so long as the person carrying isn't causing trouble, nothing can be done about it.

But just because people allowed to carry a firearm into these facilities doesn't mean they should. Consider the folks who work in these locations, and think how you'd feel if someone wandered into your office or workplace carrying a shotgun, pistol or rifle. If you say it wouldn't bother you in the least, you're either lying or not very bright.

As an ardent supporter of the 2nd Amendment, I support the right to legally carry but readily admit that I would be immediately concerned if someone walked through the newspaper's front door carrying a firearm, and expect that reaction would be the same in nearly every workplace.

So please, Lawrenceburg, don't abuse this right just to make a point or simply prove that you can.

Speaking of city hall ...

I asked the mayor on Monday if relations between her office and the judge-executive's office will ever improve, given last year's piddling fights over parking spots, water bills and other embarrassing issues that don't help solve our com-

All quiet on the Interstate

The most frightening sound is silence. Especially four hours of silence.

Sometimes, during a game of hypotheticals, I like challenge myself to choose what traditional sense I would be able to live without, one I wouldn't miss more than the others.

Smell. Taste. Touch. Sight. Sound.

Last Thursday night, as I was caught in the hard place between moving forward on icy roads or driving my car in a ditch, was no game.

Contrary to logic, I am still under the mistaken impression that I am a superhero. That I have the ability to overtake punishing Midwest storm systems in a single bound.

That I am faster than the wintry bullet of an Indiana squall that forced me to park on the Interstate for four hours.

I am no superhero, I remembered as a shivering semi-tractor trailer idled to my left and the wind screamed at the windows.

Meaghan
Downs
Staff writer

And there would be no superhero to come and rescue me.

My road trip to northern Illinois last week came to an abrupt halt Thursday night as an icy, punishing storm system blew through Indiana.

I tried to drive as far as I could, despite the snow flurries clouding my visibility and the other vehicles ice skating on the road in front of me, but without warning, every car in front of me on the road stopped.

They stopped for four hours.

The next morning, as I researched the safest route to go home, I read about the six-car pileup that occurred just ahead of me, and the 40-60 vehicles snarled together on another major highway affected by the same storm.

When I think about which of the five senses I could live without, I never think about fear.

Fear, I believe, should be included as a sixth sense because it too helps us to interpret the world, both the tangible and intangible, around us.

Without fear, everyone would jump off cliffs like human lemmings.

State's unfunded liability in crisis, and getting worse

To the editor:

With the State Legislature now in its 2013 session, Kentucky citizens can only hope that state leaders act quickly and responsibly to solve a state crisis. The unfunded liability of the Kentucky Retirement Systems (KRS) is growing worse each year.

Several variables can and do affect the financial conditions of KRS, but one that has been of concern to us for nearly two decades is the General Assembly's intentional underfunding of their employer contributions to the pension systems.

The group I represent, Kentucky Public Retirees (KPR), has been sounding the alarm for years to state leaders about this growing crisis. The longer they "kick the can down the road," the larger, more difficult and more complex the crisis becomes. This still growing 18-plus billion dollar unfunded liability creates serious jeopardy to KRS, current and retired public employees, and to Kentucky taxpayers. Our number one priority this year will be the support of the full funding recommended by the 2012 Task Force on Kentucky Public Pensions.

It is not fair to Kentucky taxpayers that this situation has been permitted to worsen. It also is not fair or reasonable to punish city, county, state employees and retirees who had nothing to do with this growing crisis. Kentucky's teachers, firefighters, and librarians were not allowed to underfund employee contributions to the retirement systems. Our police officers and bus drivers paid our contributions on time, every time. We have served the citizens of Kentucky with many years of dedicated service with an understanding that the state would honor its legal and moral obligations that included the promise of certain retirement benefits in accordance with law.

Members of KPR are very pleased that state leaders seem convinced that they must act quickly and responsibly to mend this huge financial crisis. We urge them to come up with valid solutions that will not punish retired senior citizens, who did not cause the problem and who served the state with dignity and years of service.

Our organization represents thousands of Kentucky public retirees across the state in the Kentucky Employees Retirement System, the State Police Retirement System, and the County Employees Retirement System. On their behalf, we urge you to act responsibly and with restraint.

Green Christmas equals a snowy Easter

Wow. A 50-degree drop in temperature is pretty radical, especially when it is within 48 hours. I'm thinking Mother Nature just pleased everyone.

Wimps to the cold, like me, loved those warm days, and those who embrace the cold, got plenty. Almost three months ago (Nov. 7), I wrote about my winter predictions. Let's see how I've done so far.

Let's look at Mother Nature's signs I mentioned back then and do a little tally. The first snow fell on unfrozen ground. That is supposed to mean the winter will be mild. Well, so far it really has been a mild winter, so Mother got that one right.

The squirrels gathered lots of nuts (meaning cold), the anthills were not high in July (meaning not much snow), and the first week of August was unusually warm (meaning lots of snow and a long winter). So, that's one right and two wrong, for a total of two right and two wrong. But wait, there's more.

A green Christmas equals a white Easter. We basically had a green Christmas, yet there was some white stuff still around from three days before. I'd add that one to the right side of the column.

The longer the autumn leaves hang on, the colder the winter will be. That's one of my favorites. The leaves stayed on for much longer than normal this year, but winter has been warmer than normal (so far).

Add another to the wrong column.

The persimmon seed held a spoon this year, meaning a snowy winter. Not so far. The grand tally makes Mother Nature right three times and wrong four times. Now, let's look at what the two Farmer's Almanacs and I predicted.

The orange/green one called for average temperatures, very white and wet. The pale yellow one called for colder and drier than normal. I predicted colder than normal, with one big snow event lasting days and one power outage ice event.

I thought the 3-inch snow fall was our one big one. I'm still waiting on the ice. All this one direction, then another, reminds me of the scene of the scarecrow in the field in the Wizard of Oz. He keeps changing his mind and the direction of his arms. It's just wacky.

One weather thing that we can all agree on is that we've had a good amount of rain, measuring 5 inches in January alone. We need to recover from all the recent years of drought. The damage has been devastating for our trees and the evidence just showed up.

The recent high winds have really cleared the woods of the weak and dying. Drive west along Highway 44 and take a look up the hills. It's almost like a tornado came thru and knocked half of the trees down. Not a healthy look.

We're now half way through winter. Maybe we should wait a little longer before we go counting all the rights and wrongs from Mother's signs. After all, Old Man Winter has 43 more days to decide what to bring us. Personally, I feel like we're the rope in a tug of war between mild and wild. We just have to hold on.

Now, go get those seeds started.

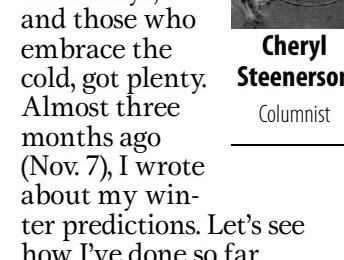

Time is starting to speed up even as the days grow longer.

February is short and then everything starts happening in March. The Heirloom Seed Workshop at the library is scheduled for March 2.

The Miss Fix It Workshop in Lexington is March 9.

Those are two of my most favorite spring events. Hopefully, our weather will be on the mild side for both. Happy growing.

Betrayal, anger over proposed state pension bill

The editor of The Anderson News contacted me Friday afternoon and asked if I had anything to say about a pending bill about the state pension system.

The pension destruction bill eliminates the cost of living adjustment for retirees and creates a new inferior pension plan that does absolutely nothing to address the unfunded liability.

The task force on public pensions said the new plan will not produce substantial savings, packs the Kentucky Retirement System's Board of Trustees with three special-interest appointees. The appointees, accountable to the governor, will out number trustees elected and accountable to the retirees.

It also promises the general assembly will address the unfunded liability "next time."

How much is a promise worth from a general assembly that has failed 14 out of 20 years to fund the actuarial required contribution mandated by state law and repeals the law of cost of living adjustment?

As retirees know, the cost of living adjustment is exactly what it sounds like — the small amount of funds given to keep retirees up with the rising cost of living. It's just enough to keep one's head from sinking under water, so to speak. We have already gone two years with the cost of living being suspended.

As a retiree, many emotions hit me when learning of this legislation.

Betrayal: We have finished our careers and held up our end of the bargain and we were promised minimum of cost of living adjustments.

The state government lied to its own employees ... how can we ever

Thoughts on protester, recycling

To the editor:

First, let me say what an inspiration it was to see in the paper how dedicated one man can be even in weather conditions that were less than desirable. To Mr. Alonzo Gaines, my heartfelt gratitude goes out to him for braving the cold to stand up for the unborn who die each day because their only "crime" was to be conceived. I was not in town that day, but that is no excuse to be lax in standing up for those little innocent human lives that are lost, so hopefully in the future instead of just giving lip service or donations, I too will be among those who actually stand out there. As for you Mr. Gaines, may God always bless you for your courage and your convictions in speaking out for those precious little lives that were ended, even when no one else may be standing with you at the time.

Next, let me say that Ben Carlson caught me off guard a little in last Monday's edition of the Anderson News. I had to read it over to make sure that I was not missing something, but kudos to his sarcasm about what is being taught to the children of this nation. It never ceases to amaze me each and every day about what is being left out in the media and the selectiveness of what is actually being reported and shown on TV, not only in the news, but in the regular programming on the networks. Anyway, to you Mr. Carlson thanks for the twist in your reporting and even Ken (my husband) had to take a second glance!

My last thought at this time is the recycling issue and the fact that I am disappointed in the direction it is going. I think having pickup at our residence by the same company that does our trash disposal was the route to go and it made a lot of sense to me logically and economically. I did express this to several people who are handling this particular matter, but obviously I am just one voice that was not heard too loudly. At this time though, I would like to thank those who have been picking up our recycling at our house as it is very much appreciated and I thought it was important to let you know that — so thank you! As for taking it to various recycling locations in the future, not sure how successful that will be and only time will tell.

munity's problems.

The mayor said things couldn't be better and that she doesn't consider there to be any problems between the two bodies of government.

"We're looking forward to a great year," she said.

That's good news, but it's curious that just a week earlier she sent the judge-executive a bill for grant money his office received that would have been the city's had it applied for the grant.

The judge-executive made it painfully clear a year ago that $5,714.62 his office received would remain in his office and be used to pick up trash from city streets. When asked about the bill Monday, he said he not only won't he pay it, he won't even add it to the bi-weekly bills list he submits to the fiscal court for approval.

The mayor, when asked, said the bill was procedural and that she doesn't expect it to be paid.

Really? Then why bother to submit the bill at all, let alone not speak to the judge about why it's procedural?

This comes on the heels of the judge refusing to reappoint the mayor's right hand man, City Attorney Robert Myles, to the county-run tourism authority.

The judge-executive said he didn't ask Myles if he wanted to stay on, opting instead to send a letter saying he is out.

Neither act seems like a thaw in the cold war between the two, but hopefully the mayor's take that all is hunky-dory between the two is right.

We'll see.

In the interest of clarification, the Planning and Zoning's discussion of the historic district Feb. 12 will not be a public hearing, contrary to what was previously reported.

Although members of the Planning and Zoning commission stated it needed to hold a public hearing according to law, that is not actually the case according to the ordinance, City Attorney Robert Myles said.

Next Tuesday's meeting, however, is open to the public despite the fact it will not be a declared public hearing. Any member of the community can attend the Planning and Zoning board's 7 p.m. meeting, located at 137 S. Main St.

trust them again? They used us up and now that we are no longer of use to the state, it seems to me they don't give a hoot for the elderly and the retired.

Fear: I wonder what will happen to fellow retirees five, 10 or 20 years down the road with no cost of living adjustment. Think how would you feel if one day your boss called you in and told you, "We appreciate everything you do, however your salary now will never increase."

What would you do? How would you cope with that loss? How would you live years down the road? Disappointment: Senate leader Damon Thayer of Georgetown says they have the votes and the bill should pass in the first two weeks of February, with all the warmth and caring of a snowman. That tells me a majority of the senate doesn't care about the elderly or retirees. There was no, "I'm sorry, this hurts me to the core." It was more like, "take it or pass away, we would be in better shape if retirees would just pass away." Anger: I'm angry about the casual attitude and lack of caring for retirees. Are we the throw away population?

This bill is comparable to stopping the bleeding by putting a Band-Aid in the wrong place, and anyone who votes for it should be ashamed of themselves and come door to door, apologizing.

Taking away the cost of living adjustments tells me the state legislature does not care about retirees; they are not even giving a hollow promise of maybe in a couple of years we can give cost of living adjustments. We retirees have served our purpose, and the state no longer sees us as useful. It sees us as a liability.

The current existing plan has defined benefits, offers a secure retirement and provides taxpayers with predictable costs.

The ever-rising employer rates have occurred because the incompetence and neglect of our legislature to pay the actuarial required contribution for 14 out of past 20 years. Senate Bill 2 does noting to fix the pension mess the legislature created, and it will not lower the employer's costs.

Thayer says the state will full fund its contribution rate beginning in 2014. To do that the state must come up with an additional $327 million in the fiscal year 2015, which begins on July 1, 2014. In subsequent years the required payment will continue to grow by hundreds of millions of dollars. The general assembly that has failed us and lied to us says it will address the unfunded liability... next time. How much is that promise worth? It doesn't have a plan and it seems as if is making things worse.

King on state pension fix: 'There will be a lot of mad people'

City councilman says supporters should be 'ashamed'

By Ben Carlson
News staff

At least 1,200 state government retirees living in Anderson County are holding their collective breath as the legislature weighs how to fix a pension fund that could be bankrupt four years from now.

The pension system, by some estimates underfunded by as much as $20 billion, is teetering on the brink of solvency and legislators are working on a plan they say could save it for years to come.

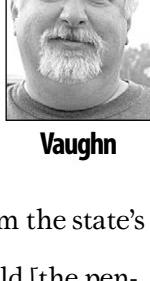

State Rep. Kim King (R-Harrodsburg) said the proposed solution will almost certainly anger the thousands of state retirees in her district, which includes Anderson, Mercer and a portion of Spencer County.

"There will be a lot of mad people," she acknowledged.

King said Friday that she had yet to see the actual legislation being proposed by a task force put in place fix the problem, but had been briefed.

King

She said there are several key factors involved, and that unless the actual bill is different than what she has been told, she will vote to support it.

One of those factors, she said, is a permanent freeze on giving cost of living adjustments to retirees that are paid from the pension system. She said any increase would have to come from the state's general fund.

"We've been told [the pension system] will be bankrupt by 2016 ... that it can't survive," King said. "We can continue the [cost of living] increases and the house of cards just collapses, or we can help it heal."

"I know folks won't like it. I already have received 300 e-mails from people saying don't take away [cost of living allowances]."

Another provision is that any new state hires will fall under a "hybrid" retirement

King opposes tax increases to fund pension system

Asked if there are any tax increases she would support to help solve the state pension system's woes, state Rep. Kim King (R-Harrodsburg) said no.

"We don't have a revenue problem," King said. "The problem is that [state government] spends like drunken monkeys."

"I hear reports of waste, fraud and abuse every day, and no one in the private sector could operate a business that way."

King also weighed in on reports she has received from a state task force put together to reform taxes.

"I'm not in support of anything I'm hearing coming from that crew," King said. "It's all just tax increases under cute little names."

—by Ben Carlson

"It was never set up for that," King said of the fund, which was created in the 1950s.

The rest of the blame, she said, falls to under-performing investments that were supposed to generate enough revenue to keep the pension fund solvent.

"This was set up for workers when they were expected to live until they were 61," she said. "Now, males are living until they are 79."

"Also, health insurance wasn't even part of the conversation when this started, and obviously health insurance has skyrocketed the past 15 to 20 years."

Although she wasn't in state government during those years, King said she still feels a sense of responsibility to fix the problems.

"We want to honor the commitments, but to do that, we have to make changes going forward or [the pension fund] isn't going to be there."

State Sen. Julian Carroll, who represents Anderson County as part of his district, did not return a call seeking comment.

Two busted for stealing scrap metal

From staff reports

Two people were arrested last Monday after police say they were caught trying to steal scrap metal from a location on Hammond's Creek Road.

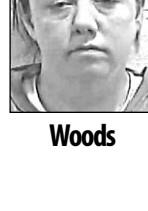

Arrested were Daniel J. King, 37, of 246 Woodhill, Frankfort, and Brandy N. Woods, 36, of 104 Parker Place, Georgetown. Both are charged with theft by unlawful taking and third-degree criminal trespassing, according to citations issued by the Anderson County Sheriff's Office.

Deputies responded to a call at 1451 Hammond's Creek Road when the suspects were spotted "stealing scrap metal," according to a news release from the sheriff's office.

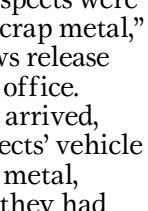

When deputies arrived, they saw the suspects' vehicle loaded with scrap metal, but reported that they had already begun throwing the metal off the truck. Both told police they were "cleaning up beside the road and along the creek," according to the citations.

Deputies said the owner of the property said the suspects did not have permission to be on the property or remove items from the property.

Kentucky State Police assisted in the investigation, according to the news release.

THE WAY WE WERE

50 YEARS AGO

Feb. 7, 1963

Five men received calls from the local Selective Service Board, according to Mrs. Sue B. Cloyd, clerk.

Johnny Kavanaugh Cunningham, a volunteer, will be inducted and four — George W. Jenkins, Paul T. Rucker, Bobby S. Sutton and Randall G. Stratton, were to report for physical examinations.

The young people of Lawrenceburg Christian Church were in charge of the regular services Sunday in observance of youth Sunday.

Taking part were: Carole Goodlett, Jackie Condor, John Giles and Gary Gillis, youth speakers, and Jimmy Atkins, leader. Others were Georgianna Gortney, Paul Johnson, Sally Ripy, June Ripy, Barbara Sparrow, Joanna Green, Gwen Binks, Melinda Ripy, Bruce Ripy, Mac Goodlett and Mike Sparrow.

Connie Herndon reported in the Little Beaver 4-H Club activities that Jerry Aldridge called the meeting to order. Secretary Sylvia Sullivan called the roll. Members Connie Ruth Simpson, Drucilla Sutherland, Sylvia Sullivan, Jimmie Cook and Connie Herndon gave talks.

Song leaders led the group in "Home on The Range."

A house at Avenstoke, owned by the W.A Franklin estate, was sold at auction to George Walker Perry for $1,500.

Tommy Hawkins, 9, and Cordelia, 6, children of Mr. and Mrs. Irvine Hawkins, returned home from Central Baptist Hospital where they underwent tonsil and adenoid operations.

The balance of the 4-H tobacco — 42 pounds — sold yesterday for $20.64.

Two hundred thirty farmers in Anderson County contributed 1,808 pounds that brought $1,019.35.

You could get six strained 4.5-ounce jars of Gerber's baby food at A&P for 63 cents. A whole pork loin was 43 cents a pound.

Deaths

John E. Crossfield, 74, retired pipe fitter, died at King's Daughters Hospital after suffering a heart attack at his home. He was an employee of the C.D. Lyen & Company here for 29 years. He had retired but had worked part-time in the plumbing business ever since. He was the husband of Myrtle Stratton Crossfield.

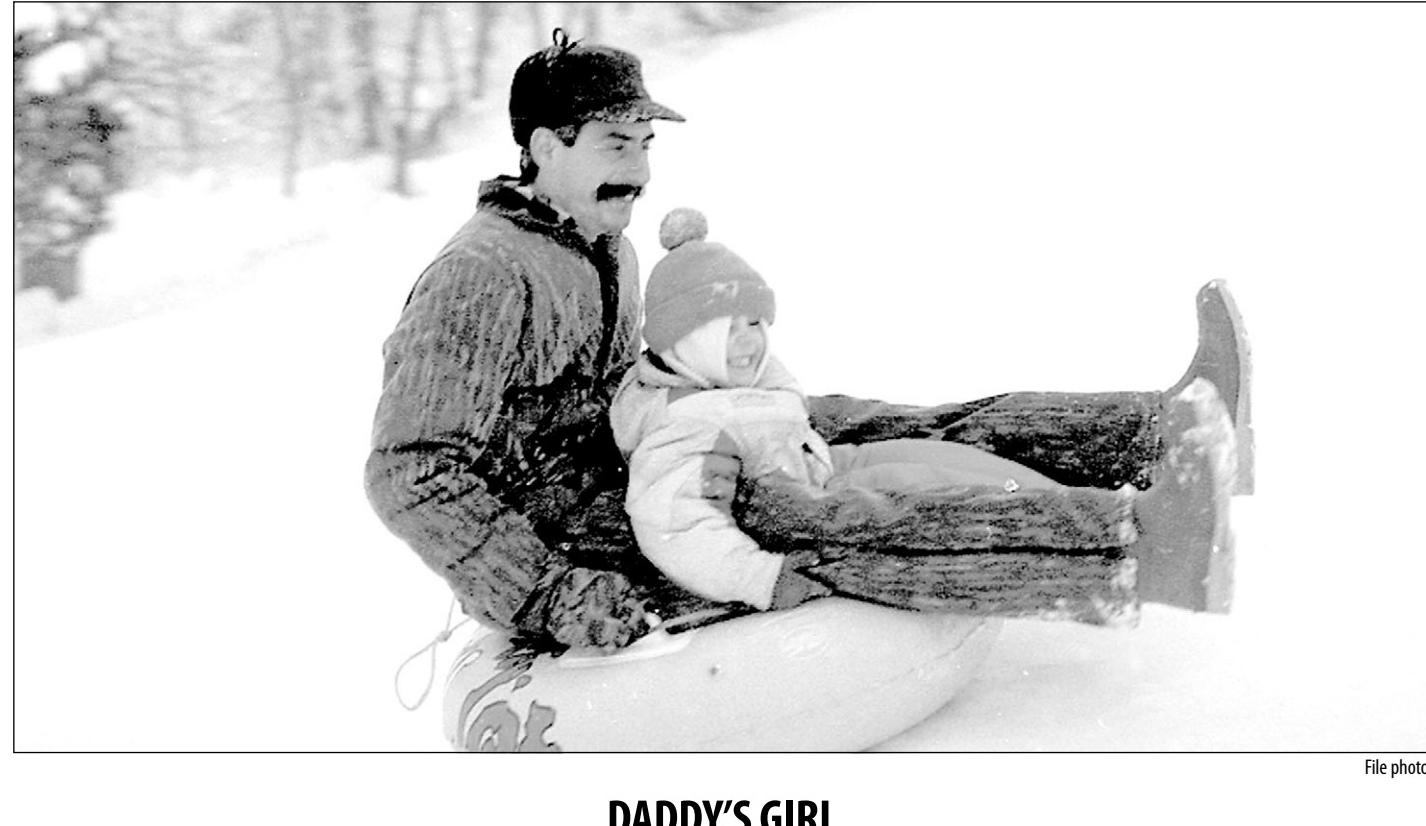

Harvey Edward Glore, 49, Louisville, was killed in an automobile accident on U.S. 127 three miles south of Lawrenceburg. He had been en route to Dix Dam where he was a superintendent for Hatfield Electric Company.

Helen Frazier McMurry, 92, widow of Edward L. McMurry, died at her home on South Main. A native of Anderson County, she had lived in Montana 35 years before returning to Kentucky 20 years ago.

Anthony Wayne Curtsinger, 8-months, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Curtsinger, died at home.

Grace Sayers Matthews, 61, wife of Robert Matthews, died at a Louisville hospital.

Marion W. Shouse, 85, retired farmer, died at his home on Court Street. He was married to Pat Truman Shouse and had a son and three daughters.

William Owen Bailey, 68, retired farmer and former magistrate of Anderson County, died at his home near Alton Station. He had been ill for several years. Two daughters and three sons survived him.

Maude Kays Buntain, 72, wife of Edward Buntain, died at her home in Cincinnati. Three daughters, a son, two brothers and two sisters including James H. Kays of Lawrenceburg and Mrs. W. L. Buntain of Anderson County survived her.

Norman Bird, 78, father of Anderson County Superintendent of Schools Andrew Bird, died following a stroke at a rest home in Brownsville.

Mrs. Fannie Bell Peavler, 74, widow of Alvin D. Peavler, died in Covington following an illness.

30 YEARS AGO
Feb. 10, 1983

Reported on the Eagle Events page was the news that Paula Jo Drury was the Western Eagle mascot. She donned the Eagle costume every home basketball game.

There were 15 seniors that had attended Western all 12 years of their school careers. They were Brian Calvert, Keith Barnett, Carrie Davis, Angela Boblitt, Lisa Armstrong, Sherry Barr, Terry Mattingly, Donna Ritchey, Kim Pinkston, Donna Barnett, Steven Barnett, Peggy Shely Garland, Veanna Brothers, Danette Darnell and Kathy Stevens.

Six students from Anderson County made the dean's list at Eastern Kentucky University. They were: Judy Bruce, sophomore business major; Eddie Coulter, senior in the College of Natural and Mathematical Sciences; Dawn Morrell, sophomore in the college of Allied Health and Nursing; Linda G. Williams, junior education major; Heather Hayden, senior in education; and Diana L. Smith, freshman in the College of Applied Arts and Technology.

A story about the amazing Mayzie Hoskins told about her teaching school 31 years and after retiring in 1966, substituting another 12 years.

Her stories of those years are unmatched. She told of "whipping" boys taller than her petite frame and of being "scared to death," but, being very strict, did what she thought she had to do. . . used a paddle.

She came to Anderson County from Knott County; married

W.B. Hoskins after having been only three places together. They were married 57 years.

Of herself, on her 87th birthday, she says, "My mother told me to succeed and read, read, read. And I've succeeded . . . I've climbed Jacob's ladder!" she chuckled.

Deaths

Claude Nichols Davis, 65, retired farmer, died at his home. He had six daughters and four sons, one sister and five brothers.

Beulah Hoskins Sea, 65, widow of Arnold Sea, died Feb. 6. Her father, Raymond Hoskins, two daughters, Nancy Harlow and Patsy Easley and two sons, David and Glenn Sea, a sister and two brothers, survived her.

15 YEARS AGO
Feb. 11, 1998

Paxton Road residents packed lots of fun into recent days thanks to one of the biggest snowfalls to hit Anderson County in many years. Dwayne Smith said he spent two hours doing the detail work on his cold hot rod made out of snow. The handler of the wet stuff said he was more accustomed to working with drywall.

Micah Cheak and Leslie Drymon were finalists in the Coca-Cola Scholars Program. They were chosen from nearly 129,000 applicants nationwide, based on their excellence, leadership and achievement.

Drymon is a daughter of Elizabeth and Steve Drymon and planned to attend Transylvania University, to major in journalism or communications.

Cheak is a son of Gloria and David Cheak and was interested in pursuing a career in pharmacy.

Army Pfc. Robert D. Spears was deployed on temporary duty to Sinai, Egypt, as part of a Multinational Peacekeeping Forces and Observers. He is a son of Robert D. Spears Sr.

Former Lawrenceburg resident, Jasper Adkins, turned 100. He had been a resident of the Old Masonic Home in Shelbyville for several years.

Adkins served in the cavalry during WWI. Upon his discharge he became a groom with what at that time was known as the Lexington Trots, later to become the Red Mile.

He was a farmer in Anderson County and said he would like to go back home, so he could go to the Senior Citizens. "I miss them."

Anderson County High School Sweetheart candidates were: Sara Ramirez, Leslie Drymon, Emily Perkins, Ginnette Newton, Jessica Rowland, Kristin Perry, April Burton and Julie Wise.

Deaths

Mary Ann Thompson Allen, 66, native of Anderson County, died Feb. 2. She was a former waitress at Dizzy Whiz in Louisville and daughter of Harry and Mary Elizabeth Bruner Thompson.

Dorothy B. Coke Gesuero, 82, daughter of John Harrison and Rama Morris Coke, died at Heritage Hall. She was a former secretary with the United States Federal Government in Washington, D.C. and an avid art painter and environmental supporter.

Norman G. Gometz, 69, Chesapeake, Ohio, died Jan. 31. He was retired from Ford Motor Company after 29 years and was a brother-in-law to Gladys Robinson and uncle to Sandra Drury, both of Lawrenceburg.

Rosa Lee Roberts Clark, 84, Florida, mother of Gordon Clark and Anthony Clark, both of Lawrenceburg, died.

Leroy W. Lowden Sr., 64, died at his residence. He was the husband of Betty J. Robinson Lowden.

John Wiley McKee, 61, Frankfort, died Feb. 4 at his home. He was a native of Anderson County, son of Harry and Fannie Morton McKee. He was a retired employee of the State Department of Transportation and a veteran of the Korean Conflict.

Samuel Boas Stratton, Sr., 95, died at Heritage Hall. He was a native of Anderson County and retired farmer, trucker and owner of the S.B. Stratton Grocery. His wife of 77 years, Rosa Camic Stratton; a son, Samuel Boas Stratton Jr.; and a daughter Emma Mae Hughes survived him.

He was preceded in death by two sons, James Raymond and William; and six brothers, John D., Jimmy Dan, Bruce, Willie, Obed and L.Z. Stratton; and five sisters, Ruth Peyton, Effie Taylor, Sarah Gordon, Nannie Shouse and Lenora Stratton.

Ruby Catherine Birdwhistell Towles, 85, widow of Buell Towles, died at Woodford Hospital. She was a native of Anderson County and was survived by two sons, Glen Drury and Ricky Drury, and a son-in-law, Ronald Drury.

Agriculture Commissioner visits FFA students to promote license plate Ag Tag program

From staff reports

Kentucky Commissioner of Agriculture James Comer and State Rep. Kim King stopped by the Anderson County High School Jan. 29 to speak with local Extension representatives and FFA students to promote the state's Ag Tag program.

Starting in March, Anderson County drivers renewing their farm license plates have the option of donating $10 to be used toward 4-H, the FFA and Kentucky Proud.

Those renewing their plates can ask their county clerk to put $10 toward programs that will come back to benefit Anderson County, Agriculture Commissioner James Comer said.

"The money people donate in Anderson County comes back to Anderson County," Comer said during his stop at the Anderson County High School, one of several Ag Tag stops he'd be making across the state that day.

Anderson County High School Agriculture teacher Randy Adams said via e-mail that the FFA received a little less than $400 last year through the Ag Tag program.

HIGHER EDUCATION BEGINS HERE

Are you a fan or a follower of Jesus?

"That which was from the beginning, which we have heard, which we have seen with our eyes, which we looked upon and have touched with our hands, concerning the word of life — the life was made manifest, and we have seen it, and testify to it and proclaim to you the eternal life, which was with the Father and was made manifest to us — that which we have seen and heard we proclaim also to you, so that you too may have fellowship with us; and indeed our fellowship is with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ. And we are writing these things so that our joy may be complete." (1 John 1:1-4)

Brian Owen

Faith columnist

In these opening verses of John's first letter, he is setting forth two realities of the Christian faith, that it is both historic and experiential, and these realities are not mutually exclusive.

For Christian faith to be authentic it must be grounded in a biblical understanding of Jesus Christ and his church as well as it being "worked out" (Phil. 2:12) in every area of our daily lives.

Authentic Christianity is grounded in the person and work of Jesus Christ and will produce visible fruit in the life of the Christian. (John 15:5)

There is an obvious distinction in being a fan of Jesus and being a disciple of Jesus, between observation and participation. For example, while I am not a sports fanatic, I am a fan of UK basketball. This means I have some knowledge of the program, that I watch the games.

I do not, however, play basketball. Similarly, affirming the tenets historic Christianity apart from personal experience is like being a fan without being on the team. You may know, and even believe, the historic facts of Jesus; but head knowledge is not salvation (Matt. 7:21), just as knowing the stats of your favorite player is not the same as knowing the person you play the game with as your teammate.

Likewise, experiential Christianity that is not rooted in holy scripture leads to doctrinal deficiency and nostalgic Christianity.

It's being a fan of "gospel" music without ever having been changed by the Gospel of Jesus Christ. It's sentimentalism without substance; it's religion without regeneration.

Before you can play the game you have to know how to play the game; otherwise you are simply running around, getting sweaty. You are going in the emotional high, how it feels to do something.

Authentic Christianity, however, is tested by the fires of adversity. Charles Spurgeon once observed that "untried faith is questionable faith. Is it faith at all?" Faith that is grounded in the facts of history, the truth of Scripture, and the experience of God's faithfulness to His children will withstand the storms of life (Matt. 7:24-25) and prove to be sincere.

What is your faith based on today? Are you a fan or a follower? Are you participating, or merely observing? Think about it.

Brian Owens is an associate pastor at Farmdale Baptist Church.

ROMANS 8 AND BEING 'IN CHRIST'

Because "in Christ" we:

Are not condemned — Romans 8:1

Are free for the law of sin and death — Romans 8:2

Walk according to the Spirit — Romans 8:3-4

Are to mind the things of the Spirit — Romans 8:5

Have peace and life — Romans 8:6-7

Are owned by Him — Romans 8:8-9

Have righteousness — Romans 8:10

Have hope — Romans 8:11

Are sons of God — Romans 8:12-14

Are co-heirs with Him — Romans 8:15-17

We will be glorified through suffering with Him — Romans 8:18-23

In hope endure — Romans 8:24-25

Are assisted in prayer by the Holy Spirit — Romans 8:26-27

We have assurance based on God's providence — Romans 8:28-30

We are more than conquerors — Romans 8:31-39

"IN CHRIST" all the above blessings are bestowed upon the Christian. See also Ephesians 1:3 to learn that all spiritual blessings are found "in Christ." Paul tell us that the only way to get into Christ is by being immersed (Galatians 3:27). For all of those who claim that immersion is not necessary in order to be saved, how are you going to enjoy the above blessings "OUT OF CHRIST?"

Times changing, even for weekly

Technology kept us on top of weather issues like never before

Times really are changing, even in a weekly newspaper.

The truth is, they might be changing as much or more than any other news medium with the way we distribute information to our readers.

Such was the case Friday in a news day as fluid as one could ever imagine in a small-town newspaper.

You probably won't find us chasing after fired coaches or trying to track down a technician to give us an update on when the lights will be coming on at a football game.

But Friday was a perfect example of how news is distributed, the technology available and the importance of staying on top of things up to the minute.

In case you missed it, the Anderson County boys' basketball team was scheduled to travel to Rockcastle County for a game at 7:30 p.m. Friday. The girls' team was to have hosted Shelby County in a 30th District game, also at 7:30 p.m.

Of course, Ol' Man Winter threw a wrench into everyone's plans by dumping a little snow on the ground early Friday morning, prompting Anderson County, and nearly every other public school system in the area, to call off classes that day.

As is my usual practice on game day, I did not drive in to the office until late that morning. I found the main roads to be clear but also very wet, meaning they could refreeze. That meant the fate of the night's games was not certain.

Thankfully, by utilizing my Twitter account, The Anderson News Facebook page and our website, www.theandersonnews.com, we were able to keep fans of both teams informed.

Shortly after 11 a.m., I got a text message from Anderson County athletic director Rick Sallee that the girls' game would be played at 6 p.m. with no junior varsity game. Within just a few minutes, I had put the information on all three places in cyberspace and had utilized my own personal Facebook page as a courtesy as well.

I might add that our friends at The Sentinel-News in Shelbyville picked up the information too, as their sports editor, Josh Cook, had taken his wife, in labor, to a hospital that morning. By the afternoon, they were parents of a baby girl. In a matter of just a few minutes using my iPhone, I was able to reach many of the sports fans in two counties.

A bit later, however, Sallee got back with me, saying that Shelby County's Central Office would not allow a bus to go out, so the game was canceled and rescheduled for Monday with time to be announced.

Within a few minutes that information was out as well.

In the meantime, Sallee let me know that the Anderson boys' game at Rockcastle was still on but they were moving the start

Anderson County swimmer Kylie Gehefer looking for step to eventual state berth

The steps to excellence are often small.

In competitive swimming, they can be minuscule, but Anderson County High School junior Kylie Gehefer is inching her way up the ladder in hopes of becoming one of Kentucky's top performers in the pool.

Gehefer will hit the water Friday in the first round of the Region 3 Swimming Meet, hosted by Russell County High School. In the back of her mind is Anderson County's first berth in the state meet, to be held at the University of Louisville later this month, but she knows it might have to wait until 2014.

A specialist in the breaststroke, Gehefer knows that even with strong times and several wins this year, her quest for the top will be tougher than going against a strong current.

"I want to qualify for the state," Gehefer says, "but right now there are about six (swimmers in the region) ahead of me."

With that reality, the initial goal is a bit smaller: get to the regional championship round.

"The goal that I am setting for her this year is to make it into the championship final heat on Saturday at regionals," says Anderson coach Karla

Anderson County's Chris McDaniel finds himself in a bind in his bout with Henry Clay's David Tuduri last Wednesday. Tuduri eventually prevailed, 3-1, in one of the most exciting bouts of the evening. McDaniel, however, is expected to do well at this week's regional tournament at John Hardin High School.

Optimistic Mat Cats looking for state berths

Close regular season with two home wins

Not many expect Anderson County's wrestlers to match their 2012 finish at the Region 2 Tournament this year, but Mat Cat coach Graham Carlton is optimistic.

"I think we can take a half dozen (wrestlers) to the state," he says.

The tournament will get underway Friday night, Feb. 8, and finish the next day at John Hardin High School, near Elizabethtown.

A year ago, Anderson earned its best regional finish ever, placing second in the team standings behind perennial power LaRue County. The Bearcats sent 10 wrestlers to the state meet at the Kentucky Horse Park.

Carlton says some things are the same in the region, while others are different. "I believe it is LaRue County and then everybody else," he says. "Realistically, I look for Central Hardin to finish second."

The Bearcats got their final tune-ups for the region last week. The Bearcats took two of three matches in the Anderson County Duals last Wednesday night. The Bearcats rolled past Taylor County and Boyle County but ran into what Carlton called "a machine" in Henry Clay.

The matches turned out to

There is a reason Anderson County is ranked No. 2 in nearly every statewide poll of girls' high school basketball. The Lady Bearcats showed why in a 66-33 rout of visiting Shelby County Monday night.

"I don't think it would have made any difference who we played tonight," Anderson coach Tony Kays said. "Our girls were ready to play."

Weather wreaks havoc on local sports schedules

Last week's inclement weather played havoc with local athletic schedules as the winter sport seasons started winding down.

The Anderson County High School boys' basketball team's home game with South Oldham, originally set for Jan. 25, but rescheduled for Saturday, was called off for the second time with Saturday's snow storm. The game will not be made up.

The Anderson County wrestling team was to have taken part in the Woodford County Duals on Saturday but were unable to attend due to the weather. The Mat Cats start regional tournament action on Friday night.

In addition, the Anderson County girls' basketball team's game at Christian Academy of Louisville on Saturday was called off due to the Lady Centurions' participation in the Louisville Invitational Tournament. That game was rescheduled for Thursday, Feb. 7 at 7:30 p.m. in Louisville.

Legends to host National Anthem tryouts

The Lexington Legends minor league baseball team will be hosting tryouts for musicians wanting to perform the National Anthem before a home game this summer. The tryouts will be held on Saturday, Feb. 9 from 11:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. and Sunday, Feb. 10 from 1 to 4 p.m. at Fayette Mall, in the wing near Dick's Sporting Goods.

Each participant will sing or play the anthem, and those selected by the judges will perform the anthem before a Legends' home game during the 2013 season, according to a news release.

For more information, or to reserve a time in the tryout lineup, call 859 422-7854. All participants must complete a registration form, which is available online at www.lexingtonlegends.com. Walk-ups are welcome based on availability, but early registration is encouraged in order to secure a spot, according to the release.

Get your news to The News

If you have a sports news announcement, score or picture, there is no better place to get the word out than The Anderson News.

is automatically canceled too. Those who support such a policy often argue, "If it is too bad to go to school, it is too bad to play ball."

Of course, the flip side to that argument is that oftentimes, roads are often clear by late morning or lunch time and travel is not hazardous by that time.

Admittedly, though, the blanket-policy would make game-day decisions much easier. What it would do to make-up games and activities is another matter.

Anderson County, and many other districts, play things by ear, making the decision on playing sometime before noon. That allows time to contact officials, bus drivers and fans about the game status.

That can be a little tougher on game day, but it seems to serve kids best. Friday, unfortunately, was one of those days where the main roads were in good shape by noon but there were questions about later in the day. It was really a no-win situation.

I have been writing sports for 28 years now and cannot remember any bus accident involving Anderson County kids caused by the weather. Obviously, they can happen, but I truly believe that those making the decisions have the kids' best interest at heart.

May that attitude continue.

BASKETBALL PREVIEW

Bearcats, Lady Bearcats head into home stretch

Friday double-header highlights week

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

Following a week that saw the weather disrupt basketball schedules, the Anderson County boys' and girls' teams face a busy schedule just two weeks before the start of the district tournaments.

The Lady Bearcats, ranked No. 2 statewide in virtually every poll, will travel to Christian Academy of Louisville on Thursday night, Feb. 7. The game had originally been scheduled for Feb. 2.

The Lady Centurions feature guard China Dow, who has signed with the University of Louisville. Dow is pouring points in at 25.2 points per game. Christian Academy, 14-8 through last weekend, is considered one of the better teams in the Seventh Region.

Friday, the Lady Bearcats will get a stern test from longtime rival Woodford County in the first game of a girl-boy double-header at Anderson. The Lady Bearcats and Woodford will tip off at 6:30 p.m.

"Woodford has a nice point guard in (junior Shelby) McDonald, also athletic guards in (Chelsey) Ford and (Anastazia) Reed," Anderson coach Tony Kays said. "All have the green light on threes. The Morgan sisters (Hannah and Jessica, both seniors) provide rebounds and scoring around basket."

Kays says Woodford is better than its 14-11 record through the weekend would indicate.

"They have been playing with a lot of confidence lately. They had a big comeback win versus Lafayette after being down 12 points with five minutes to play."

Woodford also had a 96-54 win at Scott County on January 18 and defeated Anderson's district rival, Collins, by 25 points early in January.

Next Tuesday, Feb. 12, the Lady Bearcats should get a good test at regional rival Owen County. While few are counting Owen as a regional contender, the Lady Rebels, 16-6, certainly have the firepower to be a spoiler. "Owen has been inconsistent this year but is dangerous with newcomer (Madison) Reed as their best player," Kays said. Reed, a junior, transferred to Owen from Magoffin County. She is averaging 11.3 points a game.

Senior Hannah Neeley leads the Rebels at 15.7 points a game while classmate Courtney Waldrop is scoring 11 points an outing. Another senior, Madison Gamble, is capable of putting points on the board too.

will have a big test Thursday night when the Bearcats travel to Owen County, a regional foe that should give the Bearcats a good indication of where they stand in the Eighth Region.

Owen was considered a dark horse contender for the regional title before the season but might have fallen a bit off the radar, which is puzzling to Anderson coach Glen Drury.

"Owen is loaded," he says. The Rebels, 18-5 through the weekend, made it to the quarterfinals of the state All-A Classic and went down at Simon Kenton in overtime last week. They have won two of three games from Galatin County and have beaten Grant County on the year.

"They have size and good guards," Drury says.

Freshman Carson Williams and senior Justin Shelton give the Rebels a big 1-2 punch inside while senior guard Zach Ripy is a four-year starter and junior Jarrod Ball is also strong in the backcourt.

Friday, the Bearcats host Berea after the girls' game. Tip-off is set for approximately 8 p.m.

Anderson should be heavily favored over the 6-17 Pirates. "They have some kids that can shoot the ball," Drury said.

Tuesday, the Bearcats host Kentucky Country Day of Louisville, a team that is 15-9 and defeated Spencer County, 66-56, last week.

District tournament schedule to be determined

The schedule for the 30th District Tournament, to be held at Collins High School, will be set on Saturday, Feb. 9 during the district business meeting. The pairings have been set with Anderson County playing Shelby County in the boys' tournament and the Lady Bearcats taking on Spencer County in the girls' tournament.

get a tail-whipping like we got tonight," Radford continued, "but you can learn from a game like this. In the second half we were able to get some execution on the offensive end."

The trouble for Shelby was that by that time, the Lady Rockets were already hopelessly out of it. Anderson, which used 10 players in the first half alone, built a 45-13 lead at intermission, then exploded for the first 11 points of the second half to invoke the new running-clock rule after the lead reaches 35 points.

Eriel McKee led Anderson with 22 points, many coming off steals in the open court, while McKenzie Cann added 18. At the half, they had 16 and 14 points respectively.

"McKenzie Cann had a great all-around game," Kays said. "She was 5-for-5 from the field in the first half and she was making great decisions on both the offensive and defensive end."

Fittingly, Cann threaded a pass to McKee, then drove for another basket to start the second half and put the Anderson lead over the "mercy-rule" threshold.

Check out more girls' hoops photos at www.theandersonnews.com.

Cann also finished with seven assists.

While Anderson was building a lead that maxed out at 43 points, the Lady Bearcats' pressure forced Shelby into numerous turnovers that McKee or Cann usually converted into layups.

"The thing about Anderson County is their length," Radford said. "You just don't see that kind of length until the state tournament."

Makenzie Raizor led Shelby with 15 points, but the Lady Rockets turned the ball over 18 times, according to Anderson statistics.

Anderson never trailed and exploded on a 13-0 run to build a 15-2 lead less than six minutes into the contest. By the end of the first quarter, Anderson led 19-6 and Shelby was never closer.

"We moved the ball well and took good shots," said Kays, who saw five different Lady Bearcats hit 3-point shots. "We made the extra pass and were focused on defense."

Just like one of the best teams in the state is supposed to do.

Weather means few changes in Eighth

Weather cancels most big games last week

By John Herndon
Sports Editor

The weather might have been the biggest story in the Eighth Region last week with most teams losing games to the elements, including the South Oldham at Anderson County showdown on the boys' side. Without a full schedule of games, there is little movement in my rankings of the region, but Anderson County's scare at Rockcastle County drops the Bearcats a little and we move Oldham County over North Oldham but the reality is that the Eighth Region is as wide open as it has been in years.

Collins is unquestionably the team to beat, but the Titans are not an overwhelming favorite. South Oldham is a strong second, but the next seven teams are so close they could actually be in a seven-way tie for third place.

When the regional tournament gets under way later this month, every team there will believe it has a chance to win the tourney.

Boys

1. Collins (14-6, 6-1)

Most talented team in region but is 5-4 since Jan. 1.

2. South Oldham (15-5, 8-2)

Impressive (11-2) since school let out for Christmas break.

3. Grant County (19-4, 7-1)

Legitimate questions about how good the Braves really are but they are beating nearly everyone.

4. Anderson County (16-2, 6-1)

Bearcats have won 14 of last 15 but need a stern test. They should get one at Owen County.

5. Simon Kenton (15-7, 8-2)

Great defense, big-time scorer. A case can be made the Pioneers are third-best team in the region.

6. Oldham County (17-7, 5-3)

Defending champs can still play.

7. Owen County (18-5, 12-4)

Could be most skilled team in region. Very dangerous.

8. North Oldham (13-9, 6-3)

A team this good ranked this low? That is how balanced the Eighth Region is in 2013.

Girls

No changes in our rankings. Most observers feel the Eighth is becoming a two-team race between Anderson County and Simon Kenton but Walton-Verona and Gallatin County are good enough to beat either on a given night.

1. Anderson County (22-1, 7-0)

Lady Bearcats will be tested this week.

2. Simon Kenton (21-4, 9-0)

Good guards and tough defense. Major threat to Anderson.

3. Walton-Verona (14-7, 8-3)

Two-time defending champs still strong.

4. Gallatin County (19-4, 12-2)

Depth is a problem.

5. Owen County (16-6, 10-4)

Probably more of a spoiler than contender.

Anderson County's Makenzie Cann drives for a basket in the first half against Shelby County Monday night. 'Makenzie had a great all-around game,' Anderson coach Tony Kays said.

Lady Bearcats roll past perennial power

From staff reports

Any question about how the Anderson County girls' basketball team would respond to a test found its answer last Tuesday night.

The Lady Bearcats pulled away in the second half to post a 66-50 win over 10th Region favorite Montgomery County, running their record to 22-1.

Eriel McKee led the Lady Bearcats with 22 points while Corrin Robinson added 13. Anderson shot 58.5 percent from the field.

"Our shot selection greatly improved as the game went on," Anderson coach Tony Kays said. "McKee and (Makenzie) Cann led us on transition buckets throughout."

Anderson hit 16-of-21 shots inside the 3-point arc.

Anderson could not deliver the knockout punch early but turned up the pressure in the third quarter, when the Lady Bearcats outpointed the hosts 20-13 to build the lead to 52-42.

Montgomery was never closer. "We had contributions from a lot of different players.

"Kaci Currens gave us good minutes as we continue to develop our bench," Kays said.

The victory was one of the most impressive on the Lady Bearcat schedule this year. While Anderson had been a solid favorite, the significance of beating Montgomery, the defending 10th Region champ, and the regional champ seven of the last eight years, was not lost on Kays.

"Montgomery is a very good team and has great chance to win their region. It was a big win that hopefully will help us down the road," he said.

Bearcats hold off Gallatin for impressive road win

From staff reports

It might have been Anderson County's most impressive road performance of the season.

At least for three quarters, the Bearcats 77-72 win at Gallatin County last Wednesday was just that. Anderson had flexed its muscles to the tune of a 59-41 lead after 24 minutes, but had to hang on for dear life down the stretch.

"We played really well in the second and third quarters but were too inconsistent," Anderson coach Glen Drury said. "We are still having trouble closing out games."

The Bearcats ran their record to 15-2 but, as the case has often been this year, saw a rout turn into a close game in the final minutes.

Gallatin's Kristian Morgan scored 13 of his game-high 30 points in the final eight minutes as the host Wildcats outscored the Bearcats 31-18 in the final frame. "Morgan just took over late," Drury said.

Anderson, however, rallied from an early 11-4 deficit to take the commanding lead.

"I felt like we had a concerted effort through the whole team at times," Drury said.

Anderson got a big lift from junior Lucas Mann, who scored 21 points in a reserve role to lead the Bearcats. Drury also noted that senior Kyle Sutherland might have had the best game of his career. Sutherland scored seven points with two rebounds and a pair of steals. "He hit a big three for us and had a couple of put-backs," Drury said. "He guarded Morgan at times and did a good job. We needed a spark and Kyle came in to give us that."

When the season started in November, the Gallatin game was one that most observers would have picked Anderson to struggle with or lose. The victory showed how far the Bearcats have come but also revealed, again, where they need to improve.

"I am pleasantly surprised to see us at 15-2," Drury said, "but we have still got to find a way to close things out. The post-season is close enough to us now that we should have the consistency we want."

Bearcats win at Rockcastle

By John Herndon Sports Editor

Anderson County survived a scare, but pulled out a 71-69 win at Rockcastle County in boys' basketball action Friday night.

The Bearcats led at every quarter stop but had to rally late after the Rockets took a fourth quarter lead.

"They overtook us with three minutes to play," Anderson assistant coach Bryan Hyatt said. "Our guys responded with some hustle plays and that got us back in the lead. We showed a will to win when we could have folded."

The Bearcats jumped out to a 23-15 lead after a quarter but Rockcastle gradually chipped away. "The first half, they played a zone and that led to us shooting 16 three-pointers and we hit six," Hyatt said. "We also created some turnovers that led to some easy baskets."

Hyatt said Rockcastle started cutting the lead when the Rockets began matching the Anderson shooters out of the zone. "They also took care of the ball better and that limited our points off turnovers," he said. "On the other hand, we turned it over 12 times in the second half."

"Rockcastle has a good offensive team and we never could get consecutive defensive stops," Hyatt said.

Jay Smith led Anderson with 20 points while Austin Cummins had 19 and Luke Mann scored 12.

pounds, recorded a pin against Henry Clay's Hunter McMurtrey but that was Anderson's only victory against the Blue Devils.

"Swartz wrestled really well," Carlton said. "In the one match that he lost, he was dominating up to the end but then got caught and sometimes that is all it takes."

The Bearcats defeated Taylor County, 48-24 in the second match of the night. "This is Taylor's first year, but the last few years, they have been practicing with Campbellsville University, so they have some experience, even though they are a new program, and have some solid wrestlers," Carlton said.

In the third match of the night, the Bearcats routed shorthanded Boyle County, 54-24.

"They didn't have their full lineup tonight," Carlton noted. "It is that time of year," Carlton said. "You have sickness and injuries this time of year."

Still, there were good signs. Cosby won two of three matches, losing only to Maurice Gibson, of Henry Clay. "Crockett beat him two weeks ago in Frankfort."

Carlton noted that Chris McDaniel, Tucker Pridemore and Austin Phillips all wrestled well for Anderson.

Prior to the matches, Swartz and Gabe McMichael, Anderson's 182-pound entry, were honored as part of Senior Night festivities.

SWIMMING

Williams. "She placed ninth in the preliminaries last year at regionals which placed her in the consolation heat of finals.

"In order for her to qualify for the championship final heat she will need to place sixth or lower in the preliminaries.

"A state qualification requires a first or second place finish in each event in the finals. Last year's times to beat (in the 100-yard breaststroke) were 1:07.23, for first place, and 1:07.60 for second place. Kylie is at 1:19 right now, so she has quite a bit of time to drop, depending on what the current year competition is like."

It is a monumental challenge for the soft-spoken Gehefer, who expertly meshes the confidence and optimism of a champion with the reality of the cruel nature of the clock in a sport where even less than the time it takes to blink an eye can be the difference between moving on or not.

Gehefer

Racers compete against the clock, meaning heat winners are not necessarily guaranteed a spot in the finals. It can be difficult, according to Gehefer.

"You have to really make sure you do your best each race," Gehefer said recently.

Right now, that best might indicate a run at the state might have to wait until 2014. At a recent meet held at Kentucky State University, however, Gehefer was dominant, winning her 100-yard race by almost a second. In another race at Asbury University, she destroyed the competition by more than four seconds.

However, in her last race before the regionals, Gehefer turned in her best time of 1:19.68 but finished sixth in the Shelby County Winter Classic, a large event with more than 20 teams involved.

During an interview, it is apparent that Gehefer is confident in her ability to compete and she believes there is much yet to be learned from swimming. "Kylie does so well because she works hard in practice and sets goals for herself," Williams says. "At swim meets, she will look at the heat sheets and see who she will be swimming against and what their times are. Then she will say 'I'm going to beat this person and this person!' She is very driven."

Gehefer is driven in a career that started in a pool at Madisonville when Gehefer was 8 and has flourished at Anderson, after she moved to Lawrenceburg as a seventh-grader.

The breaststroke became Gehefer's specialty. "It is the stroke that she is strongest in and the most confident in. Kylie is great at all the other strokes, as well, but breaststroke is her main one. Usually, high schoolers will find a few events that they do well in and those events will become their main focus of training," Williams says.

But Gehefer, who would like the opportunity to swim collegiately, intends to branch out next year. She is already swimming some freestyle events. "I would like to try some other strokes next year," she says.

Williams is fine with that.

"Kylie has mentioned to me that she might like to try competing in some other strokes," she says. "Next year we may start practicing some of those. Freestyle and backstroke are the most common; breaststroke is a little more difficult in terms of technique."

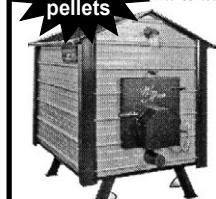

But for now, the focus is just on getting to Saturday for the Michael Phelps fan.

"I am looking forward to it," Gehefer says. "I definitely want to get to Saturday."

LEGAL NOTICES

NOTICE OF SALE SPECIAL MASTER COMMISSIONER OF ANDERSON CIRCUIT COURT

By virtue of orders of the Anderson Circuit Court in the below listed actions, I shall proceed to offer for sale, at public auction, the real estate described herein to the highest and best bidder at the Anderson County Courthouse, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky, on Friday, February 8, 2013 at about 11:30 a.m. E.D.T., which real estate is located in Anderson County, Kentucky, to-wit:

SALE NO. 1: U.S. Bank, National Association, et al., v. Jason Briscoe, et al., Civil Action No. 12-CI-00314, Anderson Circuit Court, Anderson County, Kentucky; said property being more commonly known as 1072 Dan Drive, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky 40342, of record in Deed Book 199, Page 40 in the County Clerk's Office, Anderson County, Kentucky.

SALE NO. 2: Bank of America, N.A., et al., v. William A. Cole, et al., Civil Action No. 12-CI-00201, Anderson Circuit Court, Anderson County, Kentucky; said property being more commonly known as 315 Center Street, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky 40342, of record in Deed Book 184, Page 749 in the County Clerk's Office, Anderson County, Kentucky.

SALE NO. 3: Beneficial Kentucky, v. Gregory D. McIntosh, et al., Civil Action No. 12-CI-00287, Anderson Circuit Court, Anderson County, Kentucky; said property being more commonly known as 2065 Nathan Way, Lawrenceburg, Kentucky 40342, of record in Deed Book 191, Page 592 in the County Clerk's Office, Anderson County, Kentucky.

The foregoing parcel of real estate shall be sold on terms of cash deposit or cashier's check or certified check in the amount of the purchase price, or 10% down at the time of sale and the balance thereof due and payable in thirty (30) days after date of sale. The purchaser(s) of said real estate shall have the right to pay all or any part of the purchase price by cashier's or certified check on day of sale; if the purchaser(s) does not elect to pay the entire purchase price by cashier's or certified check, the Special Master Commissioner shall take from the purchaser(s) by cashier's or certified check the sum of 10% down and a good and sufficient bond with surety acceptable to the Master Commissioner payable to the Special Master Commissioner for the balance of said purchase price, and bearing interest from date of sale at the rate of 12% per annum until paid in full. Compliance with the foregoing terms shall be at the time of the sale and the requirement of good surety shall not be waived by the Special Master Commissioner under any circumstance other than prior order of the Court. The bid of any purchaser not complying with said terms shall be rejected by the Master Commissioner and the property immediately resold.

Each tract or parcel of real estate shall be sold subject to the following:

A. All ad valorem real estate taxes, currently due or delinquent, for which the purchaser(s) shall receive no credit against the purchase price;

B. Easements, restrictions, stipulations and agreements of record in the Office of the Clerk of the County Court of Anderson County, Kentucky;

C. Assessments for public improvements levied against the property;

D. Any facts which an inspection and accurate survey of the property may disclose; and

E. Any and all planning and zoning regulations imposed upon the subject property.

SALE NO. 1: The amount of money to be raised is the sum of $111,451.04 plus interest and costs as set out in a Judgment and Order of Sale of the Anderson Circuit Court dated December 18, 2012.

SALE NO. 2: The amount of money to be raised is the sum of $74,847.28 plus interest and costs as set out in a Judgment and Order of Sale of the Anderson Circuit Court dated January 8, 2013.

SALE NO. 3: The amount of money to be raised is the sum of $174,200.14 plus interest and costs as set out in a Judgment and Order of Sale of the Anderson Circuit Court dated December 18, 2012.

MASTER
COMMISSIONER'S NOTE

All prospective purchasers are advised to fully understand and consider the following:

1 All properties are sold strictly as is, with no warranties expressed or implied. Properties shall be sold at the front door of the Courthouse as indicated above.

2 Risk of loss to improvements to real estate shifts to purchaser as of date of sale. Insurance should be placed immediately by successful bidder.

3 All properties sold for less than two-thirds of appraised value subject to current owner statutory right of redemption pursuant to Kentucky Revised Statutes.

4 Rights of possession given to purchasers with deed, but holdover occupants of real estate may require additional Court action by purchaser to acquire actual possession.

5 Master Commissioner's deed warrants title only so far as authorized by the judgment, orders and proceedings of the Court, but no further. Independent title examination by successful purchaser is recommended prior to confirmation of sale.
